Prk Ridge, Ill., — Caught between the uncertainties of winter and the payment-leakings of spring, farmers will do to feed costs and the impact of weather conditions that took a heavier than usual toll on cattle, the beef industry is looking at a somewhat shaky immediate future. But the outlook has its brighter side, depending primarily on the speed and extent of nation's economic recovery and its influence on consumer demand for beef.

Texas Cattle Feeders Placements Up 16%

Texas were down 1 percent from a year ago, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, but had increased 1 percent from the April total.

Placements during April reached 370,000 head, up 16 percent from last year, while the monthly marketings were unchanged at 340,000 head.

On the Northern High Plains, the state's largest cattle-feeding region, the May 1 total on feed was down 3 percent from last year to 1.1 million head.

"The severe weather during the winter and early spring held weight gains to a minimum in many Penhendlo feedlots, and during the first few months of 1983, most cattle were going to slaughter at lighter weights," Murfield reported.

Slaughter weights in many feedlots remained low during April, although they should improve as warmer weather returns to the High Plains, he added.

Santa Circuit

By BUDDY SMITH

The ruin end Mississippi mud didn't deter cattle breeders from making the 1983 Southern Classic Sale one of the "milestones" in the Santa Gertrudis breed. Records were broken with a standing room only crowd who saw 70 lots of Santa Gertrudis gross $238,760.00 for an average of $3,387.86. This was one of the highest averaging sales of Santa over recorded east of the Mississippi river. L & L Farms "Poll Mule" 556 sold three-quarters interest to the "Southern Syndicate" for $43,000.00. This is a record high for a Poll Santa bull and a record high for a Santa bull sold at public auction east of the Mississippi river. The "Southern Syndicate" led by Pauline Herliog's Ridgepole Ranch had a contending bid made up of Joe Garcia's River Oaks Ranch, Hugh Carr's Dry Creek Ranch and Ray Osman's G-G Ranch. Another noteworthy contender was King Ranch of Kingsville, Texas. At the conclusion of the sale, the "George Group" bought into the Syndicate for an undisclosed figure. Other members of the "Southern Syndicate" are Wes Welch's Trails End Ranch, J.T. Connor, Melvin Burchfield's All-Bemo Ranch and George Jacobs.

High selling female was Fulloo Farms 299 cow that sold sole in calf to Mule 11 to George W. Robinson, Jr. of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, for $5,800.00. Second high female was El Colina Ranches entry that sold to Mecon Groves of Fayette, Alabama for $6,400.00. Second high selling bull of the day was Diamond S Ranch's son of Rocky Christmas that sold to Porter Dunnaway for $7,000.00.

The Southern Classic was hosted by Melvin Burchfield at his All-Bemo Ranch in New Albany, Mississippi. It was one of the largest attended, most actively bidding sales I have been to in a long time. It clearly showed the demand for Santa in the Southeast.

Ed Bullman suffered another heart attack while attending the Annual Meeting of S.G.B.I. in Kingsville. According to the last report I had, he is doing satisfactorily.

Babe Phillips, son of Diamond S Ranch Manager, Ned Phillips had his foot severed in a "3-wheeler" accident. Your prayers would be helpful in making the foot graft a success.

The Youth Activities Committee is trying to create a college scholarship for deserving Junior Santa Gertrudis members going to college. Your donation and input into this fund would be appreciated.

The Mossy Oaks Production Sale is this week on Thursday the 19th. It will be followed by the Tri Star Sale on Friday. Plan to go! Mossy Oaks is selling some embryo transplants as well as top consignments including their 747 show bull which is eligible for the Western Heritage Futurity and the Pioneer Sweepstakes. Semco will be sold on Mossy Oaks' National Champion: Mountaineer 510, Chaparral 410 and National Champion 07 bull.

Talking about Pete Massey's 07 bull, he sold a syndicated share of his 07 bull to Mason Groves, Fayette, Alabama. Mason and I flew down for the Annual Meeting and stopped by Pete's to look at his calves. They are good! I predict that the share holders on 07 will be leading the pack in Poll breeders.

Nine Bar is proud to announce the addition of Tootler Welles as horse trainer for the ranch. Tootler's credentials qualify him for who's who in the quarter horse business. A renowned calf roper, Tootler qualified for the College National Finals four consecutive years, and was calf roping champion in 1972 and 1973. During the eight years that he followed the PRCA rodeo circuit, Tootler won the calf roping contest in more than 100 rodeos.

For the past three years, however, his interests have shifted to the cutting horse industry and Tootler has concentrated his efforts in training and showing championship quality cutting horses. In 1980 he showed Leonard Milligan, World Champion Calf Roping Horse and 1980 Copenhagen-Skoel Super Horse.

Inspection of the test group, each prospective inspector must verbally critique the cattle to members of the IBBA Inspection Committee for their approval of eligibility. Registration for the seminar begins at 8:30 a.m. followed by an educational program at 9:00 with opening remarks by Dana Wink, Inspection Committee chairman. A sample set of cattle will be discussed by members of the inspection committee which will be followed by the written inspection test, evaluation of cattle and committee interview. The inspection committee will conclude the test by critiquing the cattle used for the inspection test. The day's activities will close with the selection of the SWBBA candidates for the National Show of Merit Sale. Lunch will be available. Mississippi Brangus Breeders Sponsor Educational Event

A sunny day greeted over 100 Brangus enthusiasts to the Mississippi Field Day hosted by Pine Lane Ranch, Laurel, Mississippi, May 7, 1983. Brangus breeders and spectators representing Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas were on hand for the educational event. The day began with a MBBA membership meeting.

Joe Frack Senderson owner of Pine Lane Ranch welcomed the crowd to the field day. Following the welcome, a judging contest headed by Glen E. FFA Livestock Specialist, was held. Contestants evaluated bulls, cows and yearling heifers on both phenotype characteristics and performance data. Buddy Adams, Covington, Georgia, was the top judge in the senior division, while Gene Barnett, Rogersville, Alabama captured top honors in the junior division.

Glenn Brinkmeo, Brinks Brangus, Slaterdale, Texas presented an educational talk on establishing a breeding program following the judging contest. A chicken lunch was served courtesy of Pine Lane Ranch and afterwards, Larry Lofie, Seminary, Mississippi, Larry Fitzgerald, Bush, Louisiana and Heynes Floyd, Como, Mississippi, discussed the judging classes. An educational forum with the audience participation was then guided by Mark England, Seminary, Mississippi, and Morrow, International Brangus Breeders Association Executive Vice-President and Brinkmeo. Morrow elaborated on the past history of the cattle industry and the importance of designing a program with fact. Morrow emphasized the relation of performance to visual appraisal and encouraged breeders to collect facts for sales to commercial outliners.

A tour of Pine Lane Ranch concluded the day's activities.

Excitement is rapidly generating as the "Brangus Days in the Hill Country" approaches. The events, featuring the International Brangus Futurity, are scheduled for June 9, 10, and 11, 1983 in Kerrville, Texas according to Jerry Morrow, International Brangus Breeders Association (IBBA) Executive Vice-President.

The festivities will get underway Thursday, June 9, with the Pierce Oak Fry Party at 9:30 p.m. in Hays Park. The highlight of the Brangus days will be the Thirteenth Annual International Brangus Futurity Show on Friday, June 10. The 9:00 a.m. show will be held at the Kerr County Fair Barn with Glen Kilpenstein, Mayaville, Missouri, judging the open show cattle and Jake White, Colorado Springs, Colorado, evaluating the junior show futurity show cattle. Friday's events will close with the "Miss America and Western Art Sale" party at 6:30 p.m. and the sale at 9:00 p.m. at the Riverhill Country Club. The prestigious "Brangus Breeder of the Year" award will be presented prior to the sale.

A Champagne Brunch at 10:00 a.m. will kick off the activities on Saturday, June 11. The brunch will be followed by the "Top of the Crop Sale" at 11:30 a.m. with both events to take place at the Kerr County Fair Barn.

Brinks Brangus will host the final event of the weekend, Brinks Brangus Anniversary Dinner and Sale at 6:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m., respectively. Shilton's Comanche Traces Ranch will be the site of the dinner and sale.

Headquarters for the weekend are at the Inn of the Hills Motel, Kerrville, Texas. Additional information can be obtained by contacting the IBBA, 9500 Pflug Delta San Antonio, Texas 78201, phone 512/896-9241.

arrived in Key West, Fla. on December 20 where they have spent the past 90 days in U.S. quarantine.

The cattle were shipped from the Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center in Key West, Fla. where they have spent the past 90 days in quarantine.

The import, which is the largest purchase of Limousin cattle by one individual breeder in the world, has set a precedent in the cattle industry as all French Limousin prior to these have had to spend lengthy quarantines in Canada.

This historic project began in July, 1982 when ranch manager, Henry de Lobbe and the owner of the Horizon Limousin Ranch visited the Limousin Province in France. An inspection of 2500 calves from 68 different herds took place and 120 calves were chosen as possible candidates for the importation.

In August, the 120 calves and their dams were isolated from the other herds and inspected for the second time reducing the selection to 111.

The third phase involved weaning the calves and the first series of health tests by a team of four U.S.D.A. veterinarians assisted by French counterparts were primarily for foot and mouth disease, brucellosis, tuberculosis and plerocysticosis.

By mid-November, 69 animals had been cleared by the U.S.D.A. to enter the French quarantine station in Brest, France. De Lobbe made the final selection of animals allowing 81 calves to enter French quarantine for a 30-day period.

On December 20, 48 heifers and 4 bulls were jet-freighted to the United States aboard a 707 charter Global International Airways flight. The cattle were greeted at the Boca Chica Naval Base in Key West, Fla. by Dr. Cales Krill of the U.S.D.A. who then trucked the herd to the Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center located on the opposite side of the island.

Upon successful completion of all tests in Florida, the 60 head were trucked by Barren Livestock Trucking Co. to Horizon Limousin Ranch. Howard Barnes, also transported the first Limousin animal presently entering the United States from the quarantine station in Clifton, New Jersey to Seminole, Oklahoma in January, 1978.

"We feel confident that the unique genetic 'power' we are bringing to North America will be a valuable asset not only to the Limousin breed but to the cattle industry in general," says de Lobbe, a veteran of Limousin breeding for 16 years.

New Farm Shop Building Package

Behlen Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Nebraska, is introducing a new, low cost, do-it-yourself metal building designed to serve the needs of rural and suburban residents. The 21'x25' garage/shop building, called the Countryman, simply bolts together with relatively little time or labor involved. Nothing is complicated about the system. There is no frame to build. Wall and roof panels are self-supporting and assemble with 3/8" diameter bolts.

All components are relatively light weight; the heaviest member being a roof purlin section weighing 82 pounds. This is not a light-duty structure, however. It's built to last. The building is designed to withstand a 30 psf snow load and a 100 mile per hour wind.

Well panels of 24-gauge steel receive a baked-on finish of high-grade white polyester.

Coloring Book Helps Tell Story of Our Farmers

A sixteen-page coloring book, designed to help explain the important role farmers play in the nation's economy, has been created by Sperry New Holland. "The Kernel and the Reliable American Farmer" is based on the company's award-winning Reliable American Farmer campaign.

50,000 of the books have already been distributed to Sperry New Holland dealers for use in local schools and farm education programs. A sample package, which farmers can use to see if the coloring fits into their plans, is available for a cover handling cost.

The economic story may be a too much for children to understand, but the message the book will also be read by parents. The farmer will enjoy coloring the pictures, Mark Brunstetter, public affairs manager.

Many of the items purchased at the supermarket are not food items, but people consider these as part of their food bill.

A farmer can spend as much for a farm machine such as a combine, as most Americans spend for a house, furniture and automobile.

Farmers create jobs for city people. For instance, one combine or tractor tire contains as much rubber as all the tires on 15 average size automobiles.

A packet of 10 sample coloring books can be obtained by sending a check for $3 to Kernel Coloring Book, Sperry New Holland, Box 7, New Holland, PA 17057.

Organizations wishing to use the coloring book can purchase them in lots of books for $25, postpaid.

Bovatec Discussed At Annual Nutrition Conference

The improved performance of feedlot cattle fed Bovatec® (bacitracin) was discussed during the 34th Annual Montana Livestock Nutrition Conference held recently in Bozeman.

Dr. T.M. Frye of the Department of Agriculture and Animal Health, Roche Chemical Division, Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., 707110, Roche is a major manufacturer of drug feed additives, vitamins and animal health products.

Dr. Frye also discussed the long term safety/toxicity of Bovatec. Feedlot trials results showed that Bovatec is safe to use in cattle at recommended dosage levels. In addition, the feed additive requires no withdrawal period prior to slaughter.

Bovatec is supplied by the Department of Agriculture and Animal Health, Roche Chemical Division, Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., 707110, Roche is a major manufacturer of drug feed additives, vitamins and animal health products.

Pooled performance results of the various studies showed that 30 grams of Bovatec per ton of complete feed resulted in optimal improvements in cattle performance, reported Dr. Frye. At this level (30 g/ton), average daily gain increased by 5.3 percent compared to non-medicated controls, and feed efficiency improved 8.1 percent.

According to Dr. Frye, interim performance evaluations determined that cattle adapt quickly and easily to Bovatec, and it may be fed at the recommended levels of 25 to 30 grams per ton after ration adaptation. In feedlot trials during the first 28 days on Bovatec, cattle showed a 12.3 percent increase in average daily gain and 15.4 percent improvement in feed efficiency.

Dr. Frye also discussed the long term safety/toxicity of Bovatec. Feedlot trials results showed that Bovatec is

Grazon Herbicide Is Now Available In Pellets For Range And Pasture

DALLAS, TX — Grazon herbicide is now available in pellets in the Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico market. Larry Wea, product sales manager for Dow Chemical U.S.A., announced today.

The new herbicide formulation is available as Grazon 10K Pellets herbicide in 50-pound packages. Wea said. Two liquid formulations — Grazon P+D and Grazon PC herbicide — were introduced a year ago.

All three Grazon products contain pifluorfen as a basic active ingredient. Grazon P+D also contains 2,4-D. Grazon PC can be tank mixed with 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T or silvex.

Grazon 10K Pellets control, reduce or suppress a wide range of broadleaf weeds and woody plants, including: broom snakeweed, prickly pear, tassel, jiloe, cholla cactus, whitebrush, sand shinnery oak, junipers (cedar), blackbrush, graminia, guajillo, Mesquite, rose, multiflora rose, shrub live oak, Gambel oak, locust and sumac.

Grazon 10K Pellets may be applied as spot or broadcast treatments on pama-ment grass pastures, rangeland and fencarow. Moisture takes the pifluorfen to the roots of the plant.

Wea said that, in addition to large-area broadcast treatments, landowners will find Grazon 10K Pellets convenient to carry in addabags or pickup truck and hand-treat small patches of undesirable brush or weeds. For example, as little as 8.75 ounces of pellets will treat 1,000 square feet of broom snakeweed.

One to two teaspoons will kill a prickly pear plant that covers five square feet, Wea said. The same amount will take out a shoulder-high cedar.

Grazon 10K Pellets should be available at many local herbicide dealers. If they are not, landowners may ask their dealers to get them through the following distributor/agents, from whom they may also buy Grazon 10K direct if they possess a restricted-use permit:

Cham Tac, Inc., Frederickburg, Texas; Donnell Ag Products, Graham, Texas; Estes Chemical, Inc., Wichita Falls, Texas; Rushing Sheffield & Company, San Angelo, Texas, and V.A. Snell & Company, San Antonio, Texas.

FDA Approves Albady Plus for Treatment of Subclinical Mastitis

The dry cow intramammary infusion Albady Plus suspension is now available to dairy producers for use in treating subclinical mastitis caused by strains of Staphylococcus aureus and Streptococcus agalactiae.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently approved use of Albady Plus, making it the first over-the-counter dry cow product in the country to contain a penicillin-novobiocin combination. Albacillin, a lactating cow mastitis treatment which, like Albady Plus, is marketed by TUCO, Division of The Upjohn Company, contains the same antibiotics and is the only approved, over-the-counter mastitis treatment product for lactating cows in this country to contain two antibiotics.

Each 10 ml vial of Albady Plus contains 300,000 IU penicillin G procaine, 400 mg novobiocin sodium and 50 mg chlorbutanol. At drying off, each quarter of the cow should be infused with the contents of a single 10 ml vial of Albady Plus suspension. In accordance with FDA regulations, milk from treated cows must not be used for food during the first 72 hours after drying off and treated animals must not be slaughtered for food for 30 days following drying off.

Research conducted by The Upjohn Company has shown that Albady Plus is active against the most common bacteria associated with mastitis, a disease which affects an estimated 40 percent of all dairy cows in the U.S. According to the National Mastitis Council (NMC), the annual economic loss resulting from clinical and subclinical mastitis is $225 per cow per year. Subclinical mastitis, a condition not easily detected by the dairyman, is responsible for approximately two-thirds of this loss.

"In field trials involving over 800 cows in dairy herds across the country, Albady Plus proved effective in reducing the incidence of subclinical mastitis caused by Strep. ag. and Staph. aureus," says Paul Luthwig, product manager for TUCO. "We conducted research with 11 different combinations of penicillin and novobiocin in dry cow formulations on three cows; the most effective combination — 200,000 IU penicillin and 400 mg novobiocin — yielded a 98 percent least square cure rate for Strep. ag. and a 74 percent least square cure rate for Staph. aureus."

The NMC alerts dairymen that selective treatment (treating only diagnosed quarter infections) may miss 20-40 percent of infected udders at drying off. Therefore, it is recommended that dairymen using Albady Plus treat all quarters of all cows at drying off in order to gain maximum control and cure of subclinical mastitis.

Research conducted by The Upjohn Company has shown that Albady Plus customers, according to Chuchman, marketing manager for Ford Tractor's North America Operations.

"Many of our tractors have been used for 30 years or more and are still going strong," Chuchman explains.

"By sending these safety quarter-of-a-million customers to understand the importance of safety on the farm," Chuchman says.

The safety label on the Ford tractor model F-700, which is a 700-hp tractor, instructs operators to protect themselves and others by wearing their seat belts and using proper tractor operation.

"We're certain farmers are conscious in their day-to-day operations, but safety is a reminder for all of us," Chuchman says. "Taking a few minutes to read and follow the safety instructions on the tractor can prevent an unfortunate accident."

As part of Ford's continuing effort to promote farm safety, Ford Operations always has safety manuals available free-of-charge for their

Sulfur Deficiency Downs Animal Production Ups Feed Costs

It has been well documented that soil sulfur deficiencies, now common on farms across the country, can curb yield, quality and protein content of field crops and pastures.

Now, if recent research at the University of California (Davis) is any indication, sulfur-deficient soils also can curb livestock performance and prevent animals from using feed efficiently.

What do sulfur deficiency levels have to do with animal performance? Plenty, if produced on that acreage are fed to livestock, says Dr. Milt Jones, coordinator of the study.

"The whole situation becomes a problem that ripples through an entire livestock operation," he says. "It creates a domino effect. If your soils are short on sulfur, then your livestock may be, too."

Like crops, animals need to have adequate sulfur in their diets. The nutrient plays a major role in starch and cellulose digestion, urea utilization, protein synthesis and microbial gas production. According to Jones, fertilizing with sulfur appears to be the best way to avoid sulfur deficiency in both crops and animals.

In the study, subclover and ryegrass fields that received an average of 40 lbs. a dical and follow its instructions to prevent an unfortunate accident."

Fertilizing pastures with sulfur also improved the animals' average daily weight gain. Lambs fed pellets made from sulfur-fertilized clover gained 0.41 lbs/day over a 57-day period, significantly more than the 0.31 lbs/day gained with low-sulfur feed. Lambs receiving sulfur-fertilized ryegrass fodder gained 0.19 lbs/day, more than twice the 0.07 lbs/day gained with low-sulfur pellets.

Feed efficiency, or pounds feed consumed per pound animal weight gained, also was affected by pasture fertilization. Lambs fed clover grown with sulfur gained nine pounds feed per pound weight gained. With low-sulfur feed, 11 pounds were required.

Similarly, with ryegrass fodder, feed efficiency fell from 19 pounds feed per pound gained to 48 lbs/lb gained. In other words, 2.5 times as much low-sulfur fodder was required to produce the same weight gain as a given amount of sulfur-fertilized feed.

Left uncorrected, sulfur shortages reduce forage yields almost less than half of what they should be and substantially increase a producer's feed costs," Jones says.

"Crop and animal quality also suffer with insufficient levels of sulfur. The percentage gain in sulfur-poor fields can be as low as 10 to 20 percent, instead of an optimum of 60 to 70 percent," Jones greatly reduces forage protein levels and ultimately, the animals' feed gain.

Sulfur alone cannot solve all of a livestock producer's problems, cautions Sam Tisdale, president of The Sulfur Institute, Washington, D.C. "But as more cases of sulfur deficiencies are reported, farmers should make an extra effort to monitor crop and rumen levels of this vital nutrient."

Mineral supplements can be used to the sulfur gap. However, research shown sulfur fertilization to be a more effective method of maintaining rumen levels — at least as far as dry.

Dr. Jones suggests livestock producers consider a leaf analysis to assay sulfur status of forage. (Alfalfa and clover leaves at flowering should be at least 0.20 percent sulfur). These data combined with crop and field data will help develop a sound sulfur fertility program.

Out of every dollar spent by livestock families for the care of their animals, the medical profession receives

Battelle Forecasts Ag Market for Microencapsulated Materials

Business opportunities in microencapsulated materials will be identified in 1993 markets will be forecast in a study recently proposed by Battelle's Columbus Division.

The study will be sponsored by a number of companies on a group basis and should be of particular interest to firms engaged in manufacturing agricultural materials as well as food, fragrance, and flavor products. It also should be of interest to companies manufacturing high performance materials that require adhesion, crosslinking, vulcanization, nucleation, and catalysis.

In addition, the study should benefit those companies manufacturing pharmaceuticals, animal nutrition products, and specialty agricultural chemicals, as well as those involved in certain areas of biomedical research and development.

Microencapsulation is the encasing of a small particle or droplet of one material such as a drug, seed, or pesticide, in a protective wall of another material. According to Dr. Peter Teusig, who heads Battelle's study team, the microcapsule allows delivery of a small amount of the active material where and when it is wanted, and in a form that does the most good.

Although microencapsulated materials have been industrial products for many years, new uses are continually being discovered, particularly in the food, pharmaceutical and agricultural industries. Battelle's study is evaluating the technical performance and economic competitiveness of microencapsulated materials in various applications.

In carrying out their study, Battelle researchers will collect and analyze data on encapsulated materials. They will describe properties and performance requirements, and identify other potential commercial applications.

In addition to forecasting markets, researchers will assess the impact of government regulations and analyze the state of the art in microencapsulation technology, processing, and application. Also to be analyzed are trends in new or improved processes and apparatus, and economic impact of the technology.

Membership in the study is open to interested companies for $7,700. More information may be obtained from Dr. Peter R. Teusig, Battelle's Columbus Division, 505 King Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201, telephone 614-424-6549.

"Health and Handling Of Feeder Calves" Packet Available

Nearly 2 percent of all feeder calves die after their arrival in the feedlot. In addition to that death loss, shrink, sickness, treatment costs and poor feed utilization account for a total loss of $20 to $30 for every animal entering the feedlot. Reducing this tremendous loss is the subject of a new pamphlet published by the Livestock Conservation Institute.

"Health and Handling of Feeder Calves" covers such topics as: preconditioning; processing prior to movement; handling cattle at auctions, markets and the feedlot; what to look for before ordering cattle; and processing new arrivals.

A single copy of the pamphlet can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Livestock Conservation Institute, Dept. FCH, 230 Livestock Exchange Building, South St. Paul, MN 55075. Prices for quantity orders are available on request.

Livestock Conservation Institute is a non-profit organization dedicated to reducing livestock losses caused by poor handling, parasites and diseases.

Ford Tractor Training Center Opens

Memphis, Tenn. — Ford Training Center for the Industrial Tractor Operator, a dedicated facility for training of a modern tractor operator, has opened in a 160-acre equipment training facility near Collierville.

The new training center demonstrates Ford's commitment and dedication to the highest quality of tractor operation. The center is a joint venture of Ford Motor Company and the National Association of Agricultural Tractor Operators.

The center has state-of-the-art visual training aids, a fully equipped classroom and a large outdoor training area for hands-on instruction. The center will be used for agricultural tractor training, heavy-duty tractor training, and for training farm and industrial tractor operators.

The training center offers business management, maintenance and service training to the personnel of more than 100 North American Ford Tractor dealerships, as well as to Ford Tractor and field representatives.

Ford selected Memphis as the central North American location for the year-round training center because of its proximity to Ford's Memphis parts distribution center.

Ford expects approximately 1,000 students to attend training each year. The training center will contribute more than one million dollars annually to the local economy.

Mr. Carr, a training expert with 25 years of Ford Tractor experience, will manage the Memphis training center.

"In today's economy, proper training is more important than ever," said Mr. Carr. "Every year, thousands of new tractor operators are trained. It is our responsibility to ensure that they are properly trained and safe. The E-Z Roll makes this training easier and safer."

Student-Invented Tractor Hitching Device Granted Patent

Manhattan — A tractor-hitching device invented by four Kansas State University students, has been granted a patent by the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

The students developed the device, called the "Handy Hooker," in a class called "Mechanical Design." The invention is a mechanical device that attaches a tractor to a trailer or another tractor, allowing for hitching without the need for a person to be on the tractor.

John O. Mingle, director of the KSU Research Foundation, describes the invention as "a mechanical device that attaches a tractor to a trailer or another tractor, allowing for hitching without the need for a person to be on the tractor."

Mingle says that the invention could be used by a physically handicapped person or by a person who is unable to get on or off a tractor safely. The invention could also be used by a person who is unable to see or hear, or by a person who is unable to operate a tractor safely.

The invention is a simple device that consists of a hook and a handle. The hook is attached to the tractor's hitch, and the handle is attached to the trailer or another tractor. The person operating the tractor simply pulls the handle, and the hook attaches to the trailer or another tractor.

The invention is a simple device that consists of a hook and a handle. The hook is attached to the tractor's hitch, and the handle is attached to the trailer or another tractor. The person operating the tractor simply pulls the handle, and the hook attaches to the trailer or another tractor.

Any reduction of this waste, such as through the routine use of the "Handy Hooker," would be an important contribution to society," Mingle says.

The K-State Research Foundation director says that the invention has been granted a "ribbon copy" of a patent, so called because of its bright blue ribbon and red seal.

"It represents the authentication of the United States Patent and Trademark Office and is the legal original patent. It signifies that the patent has now been printed and is available for distribution to the public."

According to Mingle, the KSU Research Foundation is actively seeking a licensee for the invention's commercialization.

"The licensee, having the protection of a United States Patent, can now afford to invest resources in developing and marketing this invention," Mingle says.

Fifteen percent of any royalties received by the KSU Research Foundation go to the inventor.

"In this case the four students will share that 15 percent of all royalties received," Mingle says. "The student inventors were Mark Boguski, 8806 E. 105th, Overland Park; Todd Casey, Glen Elder; Dwight Chipperfield, McDonald; and Edward Smalley, St. Francis."

Made with exclusive Fortilux, a rigid, non-porous, rubbery composition, these thick-walled pails resist the effects of heat and cold, grease, chemicals, fertilizer, weather, strong detergents, acids, alkalis. Steam-cleanable, the pails are molded in one piece, there are no seams to split, no corners or crevices to trap dirt. It was stated. Edges are rounded for safety. Sides are tapered so that several pails can be stacked in minimum space. Model N400-8W (white) about $4.50 list; model N400-8B (black) lists for about $4.00.

LCI Offers "Swine Handling" Slide Presentation

Hog bruises caused by rough handling or improper facilities result in an estimated loss of 22 million dollars annually in the swine industry. Everyone suffers because of these losses — the producer, the packer and the consumer.

A new, updated edition of Livestock Conservation Institute's slide set shows how valuable hogs and meat can be saved, reducing a tremendous loss to the swine industry.

The slide set "Improve Swine Handling for Greater Profit" has been updated with the latest facts and designs for loading chutes, sorting pens and receiving pens. The slide set also explains how proper handling can prevent bruising and costly meat losses. It also has suggestions on truck design, loading, and transporting hogs in winter and summer. All these factors are involved in the safe handling and transporting of hogs.

The narration and slides were created by Temple Grandin, a livestock consultant who has designed many facilities for large and small feedlots as well as packing plants. She is chairman of LCI's Livestock Handling Committee.

The set includes 61 color slides, a written script and a synchronized cassette tape narration. The set may be purchased for $35 by LCI members or $50 for non-members. To order the set or for more information, write Livestock Conservation Institute, 239 Livestock Exchange Building, South St. Paul, MN 55075, Phone 612-457-0132.

Grazon Herbicide Is Now Available In Pellets For Range And Pasture

DALLAS, TX — Grazon herbicide is now available in pellets in the Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico market, Larry Wes, product sales manager for Dow Chemical U.S.A., announced today.

The new herbicide formulation is available as Grazon 10K Pellets herbicide in 50-pound packages, Wes said. Two liquid formulations, Grazon P-D and Grazon PC herbicides, were introduced a year ago.

All three Grazon products contain picloram as a basic active ingredient. Grazon P-D also contains 2,4-D. Grazon PC can be tank mixed with 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T or alvax.

Grazon 10K Pellets control, reduce or suppress a wide range of broadleaf weeds and woody plants, including: broom snakeweed, prickly pear, teasello, cholla cactus, whitethorn, and shinnery oak, junipers (cedars), blackbrush, greasewood, guajillo, Macartney rose, multiflora rose, shrub live oak, Gambel oak, locust and sumac.

Grazon 10K Pellets may be applied as spot or broadcast treatments on permanent grass pastures, rangeland and fence rows. Moisture takes the picloram to the roots of the plant part.

Wes said that, in addition to large-scale broadcast treatments, landowners will find Grazon 10K Pellets convenient to carry in saddlebags or pickup truck and hand-treat small patches of undesirable brush or weeds. For example, as little as 3.75 ounces of pellets will treat 1,000 square feet of broom snakeweed.

One to two spoonfuls will kill a prickly pear plant that covers five square feet, Wes said. The same amount will take out a shoulder-high cedar.

Grazon 10K Pellets should be available at many local herbicide dealers. If they are not, landowners may ask their dealers to get them through the following distributor/agents, from whom they may also buy Grazon 10K direct if they possess a restricted-use permit:

Cham Tac, Inc., Frederickburg, Texas; Decenal Ag Products, Graham, Texas; Extra Chemicals, Inc., Wichita Falls, Texas; Bushing Sheffield & Company, San Angelo, Texas, and V.A. Snell & Company, San Antonio, Texas.

FDA Approves Albady Plus For Treatment of Subclinical Mastitis

The dry cow intramammary infusion Albady Plus suspension is now available to dairy producers for use in treating subclinical mastitis caused by strains of Staphylococcus aureus and Streptococcus agalactiae.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently approved use of Albady Plus, making it the first over-the-counter dry cow product in the country to contain a penicillin-novobiocin combination. Albady Plus, a lactating cow mastitis treatment which, like Albady Plus, is marketed by TUCO, Division of The Upjohn Company, contains the same antibiotics and is the only approved, over-the-counter mastitis treatment product for lactating cows in this country to contain two antibiotics.

Each 10 ml vial of Albady Plus contains 200,000 IU penicillin G procaine, 400 mg novobiocin sodium and 60 mg chlorbutanol. At drying off, each quarter of the cow should be infused with the contents of a single 10 ml vial of Albady Plus suspension. In accordance with FDA regulations, milk from treated cows must not be used for food during the first 72 hours after calving and treated animals must not be slaughtered for food for 30 days following udder infusion.

Research conducted by The Upjohn Company has shown that Albady Plus is active against the most common bacteria associated with mastitis, a disease which affects an estimated 40 percent of all dairy cows in the U.S. According to the National Mastitis Council (NMC), the annual economic loss resulting from clinical and subclinical mastitis is $225 per cow per year. Subclinical mastitis, a condition not easily detected by the dairyman, is responsible for approximately two-thirds of this loss.

"In field trials involving over 800 cows in dairy herds across the country, Albady Plus proved effective in reducing the incidence of subclinical mastitis caused by Strep. ag. and Staph. aureus," says Paul Ludwig, product manager for TUCO. "We conducted research with 11 different combinations of penicillin and novobiocin in dry cow formulations on these cows; the most efficacious combination — 200,000 IU penicillin and 400 mg novobiocin — yielded a 98 percent least square cure rate for Strep. ag. and a 74 percent least square cure rate for Staph. aureus."

The NMC alerts dairymen that selective treatment (treating only diagnosed quarter infections) may miss 20-40 percent of infected udders at drying off. Therefore, it is recommended that dairymen using Albady Plus treat all quarters of all cows at drying off in order to gain maximum control and cure of subclinical mastitis.

Research conducted by The Upjohn Company has shown that Albady Plus customers, according to Chas. E. Chubb, marketing manager, Ford Tractor's North American Operations.

"Many of our tractors have been in use for 30 years or more and are kind of service record. It's hard to understand how safety deals have been damaged or painted over," Chubb explains.

"By seeding these safety deals, a quarter-of-a-million customers are to undergo the importance of being safely on the farm," he says. "The safety labels are being installed on current production Ford tractors. The new safety labels are being installed on older tractors as well. The new safety labels are being installed on older tractors as well. The new safety labels are being installed on older tractors as well."

Ford Promotes On-Farm Safety

To promote farm safety, Ford Tractor Operations is providing tractor safety decals to more than 250,000 farm families free-of-charge through a direct mail campaign in the United States and Canada.

Ford tractor dealers always have provided tractor safety decals as service parts and now also have supplies available free-of-charge for their customers. According to Chas. E. Chubb, marketing manager, Ford Tractor's North American Operations, "Many of our tractors have been in use for 30 years or more and are kind of service record. It's hard to understand how safety deals have been damaged or painted over," Chubb explains.

Sulfur Deficiency Downs Animal Production Ups Feed Costs

It has been well documented that soil sulfur deficiencies, new common on farms across the country, can curb yield, quality and protein content of field crops and pastures.

Now, if recent research at the University of California (Davis) is any indication, sulfur-deficient soils also can suppress livestock performance and prevent animals from using feed efficiently. What do soil fertility levels have to do with animal performance? Plenty, if crops produced on that acreage are fed to livestock, says Dr. Milt Jones, coordinator of the study.

"The whole situation becomes a problem that ripples through an entire livestock operation," he says. "It creates a domino effect. If your soils are short on sulfur, then your livestock may be, too."

Like crops, animals need to have adequate sulfur in their diets. The nutrient plays a major role in starch and cellulose digestion, urea utilization, protein synthesis and microbial gas production. According to Jones, fertilizing with sulfur appears to be the best way to avoid sulfur deficiency in both crops and animals.

In the study, subclover and ryegrass fields that received an average of 40 lbs. sulfur per acre, in addition to recommended rates of N, P, and K, outyielded fields that received no sulfur. Subclover grown with sulfur averaged 4,250 lbs./acre. The check averaged 2,700 lbs./acre. On ryegrass, sulfur upped yields from 5,890 lbs./acre to 7,450 lbs./acre.

Fertilizing pastures with sulfur also improved the animals' average daily weight gain. Lambs fed pellets made from sulfur-fertilized clover gained 0.41 lb/day over a 67-day period, significantly more than the 0.31 lb/day gained with low-sulfur feed. Lambs receiving sulfur-fertilized ryegrass fodder gained 0.19 lb/day, more than twice the 0.07 lb/day gained with low-sulfur pellets.

Feed efficiency, or pounds feed consumed per pound animal weight gained, was also affected by pasture fertilization. Lambs fed clover grown with sulfur consumed nine pounds feed for each pound weight gained. With low-sulfur feed, 11 pounds were required.

Similarly, with ryegrass fodder, feed efficiency fell from 19 pounds feed per pound gained to 18 lbs./lb. gained. In other words, 2.5 times as much low-sulfur fodder was required to produce the same weight gain as a given amount of sulfur-fertilized feed.

"Left uncorrected, sulfur shortages produce forage yields almost less than half of what they should be and substantially increase a producer's feed costs," Jones says.

"Crop and animal quality also suffer with inefficient levels of sulfur. The percentage of sulfur in sulfur-poor fields can be as low as 10 to 20 percent, instead of an optimum of 60 to 70 percent. This greatly reduces forage protein levels and, ultimately, the animals' weight gain."

Sulfur alone cannot solve all of a livestock producer's problems, cautions Dr. Sam Tisdale, president of The Sulphur Institute, Washington, D.C. "But as more cases of sulfur deficiencies are reported, farmers should make an extra effort to monitor crop and ruminant levels of this vital nutrient."

Dietary supplements can be used to fill the sulfur gap. However, research has shown sulfur fertilization to be a superior method of maintaining ruminant levels — at least as far as dry-matter intake is concerned.

Dr. Jones suggests livestock producers consider a leaf analysis to assay the sulfur status of forage. (Alfalfa and subclover leaves at flowering should be at least 0.20 percent sulfur). These results combined with crop and field history, will help develop a sound pasture fertility program.

Out of every dollar spent by American families for the care of their health, the medical profession receives thirty cents.

Battelle Forecasts Ag Market for Microencapsulated Materials

Business opportunities in microencapsulated materials will be identified in 1993 markets will be forecast in a study recently proposed by Battelle's Columbus Division.

The study will be sponsored by a number of companies on a group basis and should be of particular interest to firms engaged in manufacturing agricultural materials as well as food, fragrance, and flavor products. It also should be of interest to companies manufacturing high performance materials that require adhesion, crosslinking, vulcanization, medication, and catalysis.

In addition, the study should benefit these companies manufacturing pharmaceuticals, animal nutrition products, and specialty agricultural chemicals, as well as those involved in certain areas of biomedical research and development.

Microencapsulation is the encasing of a small particle or droplet of one material such as a drug, seed, or pesticide, in a protective wall of another material. According to Dr. Peter Taussig, who heads Battelle's study team, the microcapsule allows delivery of a small amount of the active material where and when it is wanted, and in a form that does the most good.

"A microencapsulated birth control hormone, for example, releases effective levels of active ingredient over long periods of time, thereby reducing dosage levels, undesired side reactions, and costs."

Although microencapsulated materials have been industrial products for many years, new uses are continually being discovered, particularly in the food, pharmaceutical and agricultural industries. Battelle's study is evaluating the technical performance and economic competitiveness of microencapsulated materials in various applications.

In carrying out their study, Battelle researchers will collect and analyze data on encapsulated materials. They will describe properties and performance requirements, and identify other potential commercial applications.

In addition to forecasting markets, researchers will assess the impact of government regulations and analyze the state of the art in microencapsulation technology, processing, and application. Also to be analyzed are trends in new or improved processes and applications and economic impact of the technology.

Membership in the study is open to interested companies for $7,700. More information may be obtained from Dr. Peter R. Taussig, Battelle's Columbus Division, 545 King Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201, telephone 614-424-6549.

Non-Toxic, Micro Feed Supplement Helps Realize More Gain

Suppli-Mix® is a revolutionary new concept of feeding in the livestock industry. Ralco-mix Products, Inc., manufacturers Suppli-Mix, a 100% non-toxic micro feed supplement that helps livestock gain more from their home grown grain, hay, or grass.

Suppli-Mix assures the presence of properties in the human which enable the organisms to flourish and multiply. Microbial protein production also occurs at this time which can reduce the use of commercial protein and save you money.

Suppli-Mix also contains a special colonic carbonite which assures livestock of the necessary minerals that enable the organisms in the rumen to produce Vitamin B12. This aids in the conversion of propionic acid which increases meat production.

Ralco has conducted various tests and university studies throughout the United States with Suppli-Mix. A leading southwestern university concluded that steers finished on Suppli-Mix gained faster and utilized feed more efficiently. Steers given Suppli-Mix in both the growing and finishing phases of the test program GAINED 10% FASTER AND REQUIRED 12% LESS FEED than the control animals. The official report of the university study overstates: "Finished steers on a high-concentrate diet showed a marked improvement in gain and feed efficiency when Suppli-Mix was incorporated in the diet."

Another university study on cows and calves that were fed Suppli-Mix showed that the COWS GAINED 42 POUNDS MORE WEIGHT AND MAINTAINED HIGHER CONDITION SCORES than the comparable controls. Calves that were nursing cows during the supplemented period AVERAGED 58 POUNDS HEAVIER AT WEANING and in better condition than the control animals.

New Mexico State University recently ran a field trial test using various range supplements. Suppli-Mix was included in a new Summer Green mix product and tested against other competitive products. The Suppli-Mix fed cattle responded with a .075 cost per pound of additional gain, versus the control group. While the competition's product cost ranged from a low of .222 to a high of $1.10 per pound of additional gain, Suppli-Mix's profitability was once again clearly evident in this controlled test.

Suppli-Mix aids in improving general health and reproductive ability. Suppli-Mix enables more protein to be digested and converted to gain. A non-medicated, 100% natural feed supplement, Suppli-Mix is in safe for horses and other livestock.

Medicated Suppli-Mix with Decox® provides you with all the benefits of Suppli-Mix, plus also aids in the prevention of coccidiosis in ruminating cattle caused by Eimeria bovis and Eimeria tenella.

A rather funny thing was put in charge of a department. The man was so afraid of making a mistake that he couldn't make a decision. Gradually the entire department ceased to function. After several weeks of inactivity an exasperated supervisor finally sent the fellow a note: "It has come to my attention that the department you have been given is not being used. Since you seem unable to find a purpose for it, we were wondering if you might be willing to loan it back to the company for a while. We need it."

Ruminal Manipulation Increases Production Efficiency

Kansas City, Mo.—Manipulation of ruminal fermentation can increase the efficiency of animal production, reported Dr. Fred N. Owens, Oklahoma State University animal science researcher, at the 81st Annual Pfizer Research Conference.

"Although necessary for maximum utilization of cellulose and non-protein nitrogen, fermentation pays a penalty in lost energy in the form of methane and heat," he told participants of the conference. "The loss can be reduced with feed additives or drugs to alter the microbial population in the rumen or with feed processing methods that alter the time feed remains in the rumen."

Ruminal fermentation also affects the efficiency of microbial production of protein, Owens said. "Limited availability of certain nutrients, such as nitrogen and sulfur, and varied other factors can reduce efficiency of microbial growth," he reported.

According to Owens, ruminal manipulation under feedlot conditions can increase livestock's energy utilization by over 10 percent. He also said that under range conditions, 20 percent advantages have been reported.

"Though some sacrifices are usually involved, ruminal manipulation has an immense potential," Owens said. "However, the cost-to-benefit ratio of different feeding and management conditions still needs to be defined."

The Pfizer Research Conference is held annually in conjunction with the national meeting of the American Feed Manufacturers Association. It features leading university authorities who report on their work in animal and poultry nutrition.

Agricultural, Irrigation Equipment Trade Mission This Fall

U.S. Agricultural and Irrigation Equipment Trade Mission to Morocco, Tunisia, and Algeria set October 29-November 14, 1983.

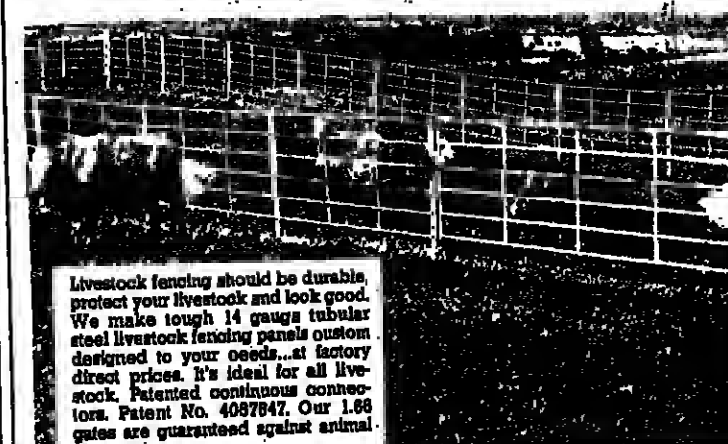

The governments of Morocco, Tunisia, and Algeria have given top priority to the development of agriculture and water resources. The current Moroccan Five Year Plan calls for increasing irrigated land from 700,000 to one million hectares. When King Hassan II visited the U.S. in 1982, a $200 million cereals production aid program for Morocco was announced.

In Tunisia's 1982-86 Five Year Plan, agricultural development is the key sector. Almost $12.5 billion in new investments is targeted for this period, with an emphasis on irrigation for increased cereals production. Algeria plans to spend $7.2 billion on agricultural programs and $7.5 billion on hydraulics programs under its 1980-84 Five Year Development Plan.

Projects include a massive land reclamation program, expansion of irrigated lands, increases in animal production, poultry, egg, dairy and red meat, and intensification of the production of cereals, dry and fresh vegetables, and fruit. This trade mission affords members an excellent opportunity to meet key government officials, agents, and private sector buyers to confidentially prearrange meetings and receptions. There are good sales prospects for all types of agricultural, irrigation, agricultural chemicals, and animal production equipment and supplies.

Preconditioning Program Boosts Cattleman's Profit Potential

Research end data on the performance of "preconditioned" calves have proven that a program of sound nutrition and good management will improve a cattleman's profit potential, says Dr. Danny Williams, manager of applied beef research for Relaton Purina Co.

A recognized preconditioning program, says Dr. Williams, should include:

• On day of weaning, calves should be put in small pens protected from weather extremes and be fed good, quality grass hay.

• From day two, and for 21 to 28 days, calves should be fed a medicated ration, the Preconditioning/Racelvig Chow free choice, and be provided with plenty of fresh, clean water.

• All calves should be drenched and, at three months, all bulls castrated.

• Vaccination against blackleg and malignant edema should be administered immediately after weaning.

• A veterinarian should be consulted for advice on any other medication that might be necessary to ensure healthy calves.

• Calves should also be treated for nil internal and external parasites.

• Sick calves should be separated from the herd immediately, and all remaining calves quickly treated for the same disease.

Under this model preconditioning program, Dr. Williams says, calves will be better prepared to overcome the shock and stress of weaning, better conditioned for shipping, and get off to a good start upon arrival at the feedlot. "Proper nutrition and health care, using a recognized preconditioning program, will help optimize production and profits," Dr. Williams concludes.

Beef Industry Faces Uncertainties Seen By Economists

Economists are not unanimous on all points, but they do agree in that the beef industry is going to face a lot of uncertainty for the consumer dollar in coming months from pork and poultry. Prices of both pork and poultry are expected to be higher this year, while prices for these major competitors for the meat dollar will trend lower. While meat prices will trend downward, pressure on beef prices, the pace of the recovery could be an offsetting factor.

There are some differences of opinion between the four economists on where prices are headed for the rest of the year. Purcell looks for choice steers to range from $88 to $88 during the July-September quarter, falling off to $86 to $86 in the fourth quarter. Relarson pegs his estimates to the middle of the range at $86.50 in the third quarter and $82-$88 in the fourth. Both estimates are on the basis of Omaha prices. Grimes expects fed cattle prices to be about the same as a year ago in the third quarter and a little higher in the fourth quarter.

Uvacek says because of higher death losses, poor gains during a hard winter and many areas and other factors, "Cattle prices this fall may surprise many, particularly if the economic recovery continues to gain steam." He says the improved price level for fed cattle and calves has changed the attitude among cattlemen - which is reflected in the prices being paid for cow-calf pairs. He cautions, however, that prices may not improve much over current levels.

Purcell urges cattlemen to employ a strategy to establish price protection through contracting or hedging to lock in profit levels and freeze input costs. As an example, he says that when his report was prepared, August feeder cattle futures were at the area of $84. He suggests buying futures at that level, "to peg feeder cattle costs subject to any basis risk." However, Relarson cautions that the forward pricing "is difficult for the seller because of the large amounts from current cash prices."

How much influence the payment-in-kind program will have on the beef industry is debatable, Grimes notes. The PIK contributed to stronger feeder cattle prices during late winter and early spring, but higher feedgrain prices and the large number of feeder cattle that will become available off wheat futures in late May and early June is certain to put pressure on prices. He thinks PIK will have an influence on feeder cattle prices in early fall when large amounts of forage will be available on PIK set-aside acres. Grimes doubts that PIK will have a long-term influence on the cattle industry - unless the program is continued for several years.

Uvacek says there is a lot of confusion surrounding the PIK program, adding that "No one really knows how much additional cattle were put on the best pastures this year or where they will be marketed." He cautions that the extremely large numbers of cattle will come off wheat pastures to flood the market, noting, for example, that the number of cattle on small grain pastures in Texas this year was 28 percent less than a year ago. Uvacek also expects weights of cattle coming off wheat will be below normal, primarily because of poor weather and the relatively short period available for fattening.

All four economists see economic recovery of the nation as the prime factor affecting the outlook for the beef industry.

Stuph & Thangs

assessments again the dairy farmers and at the same time was not able to come up with an answer to some $300 million in the dairy price support program. Everybody is painfully aware of the dairy surplus and efforts to give away butter and cheeses in storage have brought howls from the cheese industry, who say this free cheese has scuttled their own domestic market for cheese and since sales are down in the stores surplus cheese will be kept in storage. Some puzzle.

On top of this there is now a study of the PIK, or crop sweep program, coming from the House Government Operations Committee that says PIK was poorly thought out, farmers were misled, vital information was withheld and it might have been better to give 'em cash instead of surplus grain in storage. The criticism seems to run more or less along party lines in this report. It also says that USDA failed to think through the supply-demand angles and instructions were too slow in getting to AISC offices which were to handle details, etc.

At this writing we have heard few complaints from the farmers involved, except that some of 'em would have liked to have participated even more heavily than they did and would like to have taken more of the commodities and run. Natchery people who sell stuph to farmers are howlin' about how sales of seed, fertilizer, machinery, fuel and other necessities will be cut to the bone. However, on the basis of recent crop estimates it appears that wheat crop may be near normal in spite of the acres retired because of good to excellent conditions. The same may apply to corn, however some of the corn may be months before we will know how much of a crop will be made due to the wet grounds.

The Congressional Office of Technology Assessment, (ever heard of them before?) is howlin' about the fact that Export Administration Act of 1979 has flopped. Sen. Jock Garn of Utah says it has seemed to focus on the Soviet market, which is relatively small and likely to stay that way for a while, and has ignored a lot of more important stuff. He also pointed out the unlikelihood of effectiveness of trying to punish the Soviets with trade embargoes, etc. Also he figures trying to fight our foreign affairs battles on the farmers' backs is double wrong as well as useless.

In addition Sen. Roger Jepsen of Iowa says the Joint Economic Committee is getting together May 18 to rehearse the traditional Govt supply-control programs & storage plans that have failed to reduce overproduction, surpluses and has not enhanced the prices either. It's kind of sickening, ain't it?

You might say agriculture is coming front & center in the political arena and now might be a very good time to head far the storm clouds.

Ever thus, The Editor.

P.S. Uncle Dunk notes that Texas Gov. White, who ran tellin' folks he was agin new taxes, has scheduled some news conferences to try to belabor the Legislature into votin' for a fresh billion or two in various kinds of taxes ranging from sin to utility taxes on business. But we can be thankful the Legislature will go out of business in about a couple of weeks and his new taxes have a better than even chance to die on the vine. Dunk figures if we raise enough Cain we might be able to head off excessive taxes and spendin' to some degree and points to the effect of the outcry over withholding on interest and dividends. The sad part is those tax cuts the Administration put in, and then the efforts of the same Administration to make up for 'em with more new taxes to support the bureaucracy in the style to which that have become accustomed, as well as the Pork Barrel Boys in Congress and around the country. Thasall, Brothers!
